Carter Ledyard Partner Tim McCarthy, whose practice focuses on international disputes, was quoted in an article published by Law 360 on the recent decision by President Trump to pull out of the Iran Nuclear Deal. He explained that our European allies are going to do their best to “stay in the deal [and] defeat U.S. efforts to re-impose secondary sanctions, [which] is potentially very significant,” and discussed the potential implications of the withdrawal for private international disputes.
