What I enjoy most about practicing Trusts and Estates is getting to know families and individuals, learning about their backgrounds and aspirations, and providing information and resources to help them reach their goals.

Anna practices in the areas of trust and estate administration and estate and gift planning. Anna has extensive experience guiding clients through probate and administration proceedings in the Surrogate's Courts of New York City and Westchester County, as well as assisting fiduciaries in the administration of trusts and estates involving a wide range of family dynamics, financial circumstances and cultural backgrounds. Anna also has extensive experience drafting wills, trusts, advance directives, powers of attorney and other estate planning documents for both domestic and international clients.

Prior to joining the firm, Anna was an associate at a firm in Westchester County where she focused on trust and estate administration and estate planning. During law school, she worked as an intern in the general counsel's office of a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization and at a law firm that specializes in providing legal advice to non-profit organizations and foundations.

As part of her approach to providing legal services, Anna's background, having studied and researched in the areas of clinical psychology and cognitive psychology prior to law school, informs her work with families and individuals. Her understanding of the complex dynamics in situations involving trusts and estates is a significant value to clients facing difficult or delicate scenarios.
