Annelise H. Raymond Alam is an associate in the firm's Litigation practice group.

She works on many phases of litigation, including legal research, writing client memoranda, drafting motions and briefs, preparing discovery requests and responses, and helping prepare cases for arbitration and trial.

During law school at New York University, Annelise was a Staff Editor for the NYU Review of Law & Social Change. She was also co-president of the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence. As an undergraduate, Annelise attended Cornell University, earning a B.A. in Psychology.

Outside the Office

I love novels, cups of tea, crossword puzzles, and exploring New York City with my sweet Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, Trixie.
